Care

Cleanability	Since leather is inherently resistant, resilient and durable it requires very little maintenance. In fact the best maintenance for leather is use. Occasional dusting with a dry cloth should be all that is necessary to clean and maintain it. Spills should be wiped up immediately, since anything alcoholic or acidic could eventually eat its way through protective finish if left on over period of time. For stains dampen a clean cotton cloth and add a small amount of mild cleanser such as Ivory® soap. Gently wipe the affected area in small circles, so that it's entirely covered. Then, rinse the excess soap from cloth, wring dry so that it is damp, not soaking, and go over the affected area again. Do not over saturate leather with water, and use the least amount of soap possible. Do not apply commercial saddle soap, oils or cleaners to the leather. These products are not made for use on upholstery leather and can actually harm it.
