

ALLOY BENCHING MARKET PERSPECTIVE

National was drawn into the benching segment by an overwhelming trend in today's workplaces. Facilities continue to offer work zones that define personal space, yet encourage collaboration. Alloy benching bridges the gap between offices and open plan by balancing personal space and the need to interact.

This lighter scale benching series offers options to meet the demands for seated and standing height workspaces, as well as single and double sided configurations. By allowing people to be near each other, but still have their own distinct space, Alloy makes interaction easy and effortless.

Alloy's smart design and versatility make it a stand-out in the benching market. The clean lines and simplicity add to the sleek design. Not only is Alloy a leader in form and function, it's simple to specify and value driven.

