

RIZORA STOOLS

DESIGN PERSPECTIVE

Designed by Radice Orlandini, Rizora is a versatile collection of stools that deliver simplicity of design in worksurface, counter, and bar height options. Rizora's varying heights offer wood legs in a range of finishes and a spectrum of seat colors. The polished footrest conveys luxury while boosting functionality, and the optional seat pad provides additional comfort with the pleasant touch of upholstery. Perfect for spaces that welcome, entertain, and invite collaboration, Rizora's versatility is undeniable.

“Rizora combines creativity and imagination with a cosmopolitan and unconventional spirit. Rizora is perfect for the contract sector, maybe at the counter of a trendy place, but also for your home or office. The contrast between the two different materials corresponds to two design concepts – the industrial production of plastic and the handicraft production of wood. The aesthetic is focused on the junction of the two different parts, the point where two different languages meet and clash; the warmth of natural wood and manual processing + the color of plastic and industrial processes. Rizora is ironic and fun in the name, essential and decisive in the lines, ergonomic and comfortable in shape.”
